

FIELD DAY IN GARDEN

Initiative design is beginning from a normal drawing found in an old diray. The drawing contains an interesting Korean culture to enable new characteristics on the stereotype of garden and it is a highlight program on elementary schools' sports day, called "breaking basket".

With a very brief explanation, it is a sort of competitive group work between two groups. When referee calls a whistle, each group members throw small sacks filled with dry beans toward hanging basket and group becomes a winner who make it open fast so that flowers and written banner are pouring out.

Garden is imagined based on this game which contains the concept of dynamic, circulation and cooperation and they can be achieved through next four steps.

First, visitors open closed hanging basket using bean sacks.
 Second, new type of sacks containing flower seeds is pouring out from the baskets which visitors can take.
 Third, visitors plant seeds they took in their gardens in order to encourage Canadian garden culture flourished.
 Last, people donate new seeds back here from well grown-up flowers so that it stimulates more advanced garden culture and make it dispersed.

Original play is just to grab a victory but new play is to provide new experience for visitors.
