

HAPPY FEET, HAPPY PLACES

Apps. Games. Youtube. Instagram. Social Media. REPEAT. These are some common activities that we, as a society, observed from the children around us. These activities have one common trait: they transport the user into a fantasy world where we live in perfect imagery. This project seeks to help visitors realize that the real world we live in- whether in the messy affairs of urban life or in the tranquility of rural landscapes- is also a magical and exciting place...only if we stop to enjoy it.

From far away, visitors see a large swath of tall grasses (Miscanthus Sinensis), with glittering items among them. Approaching the project site, they will find that the items are small pinwheels swaying in the wind. Upon closer examination, they will encounter either a tunnel or path that beckons them into the interior. At the end of each path/ tunnel, visitors are rewarded with a delightful, flowery oasis. After enjoying this secretive spot, they have to make a choice: do they explore the other three paths, or do they take the same path back?

Plant Selection

Miscanthus Sinensis Purpurascens

Sunflower

Plant Selection (Alternative)

Miscanthus Sinensis Yuka Jima

Pennisetum Alopecuroides

