

Sacquer + Bouter

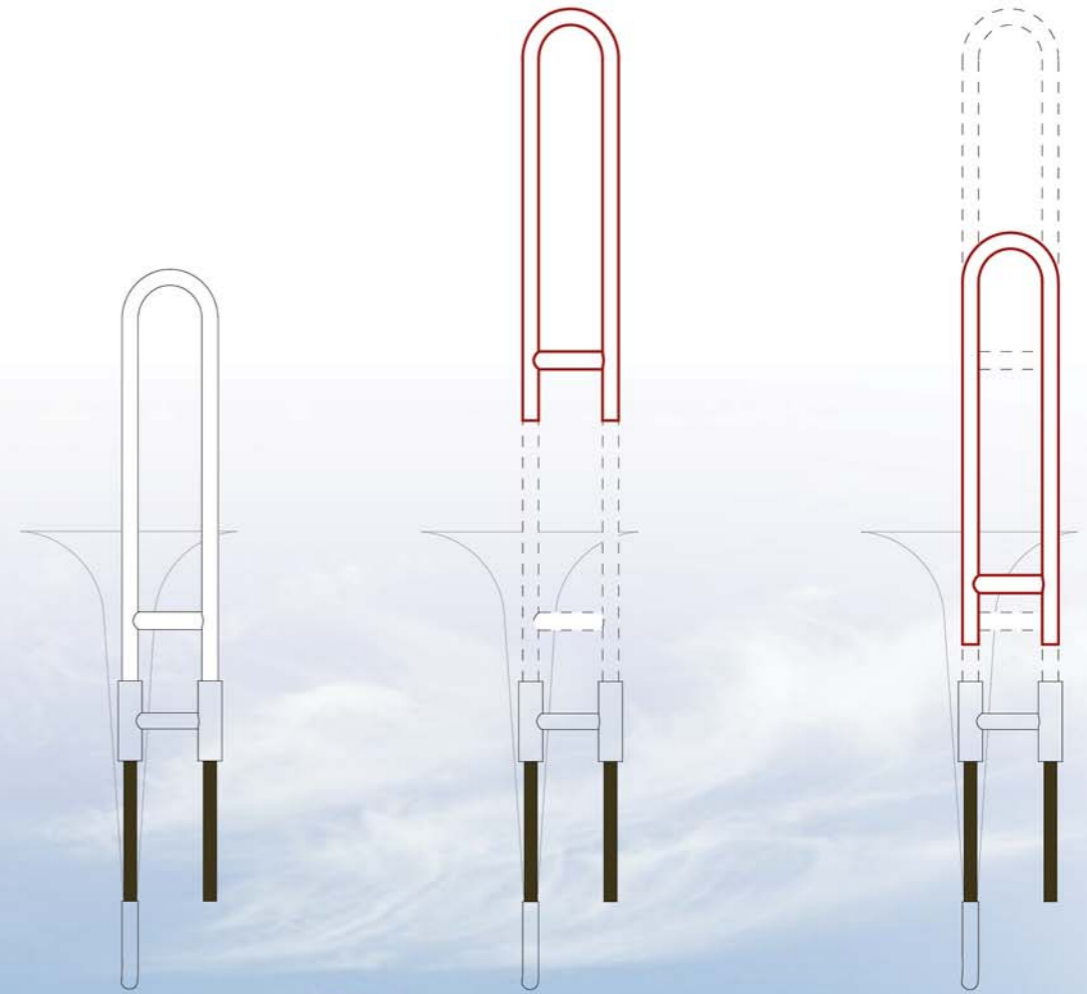

This garden defines a term "play" as not only an entertaining activity but also a prerequisite learning for real world. Thus fundamental design purpose is to help to provide joyful moment and to understand some principle of such a reality at the same time.

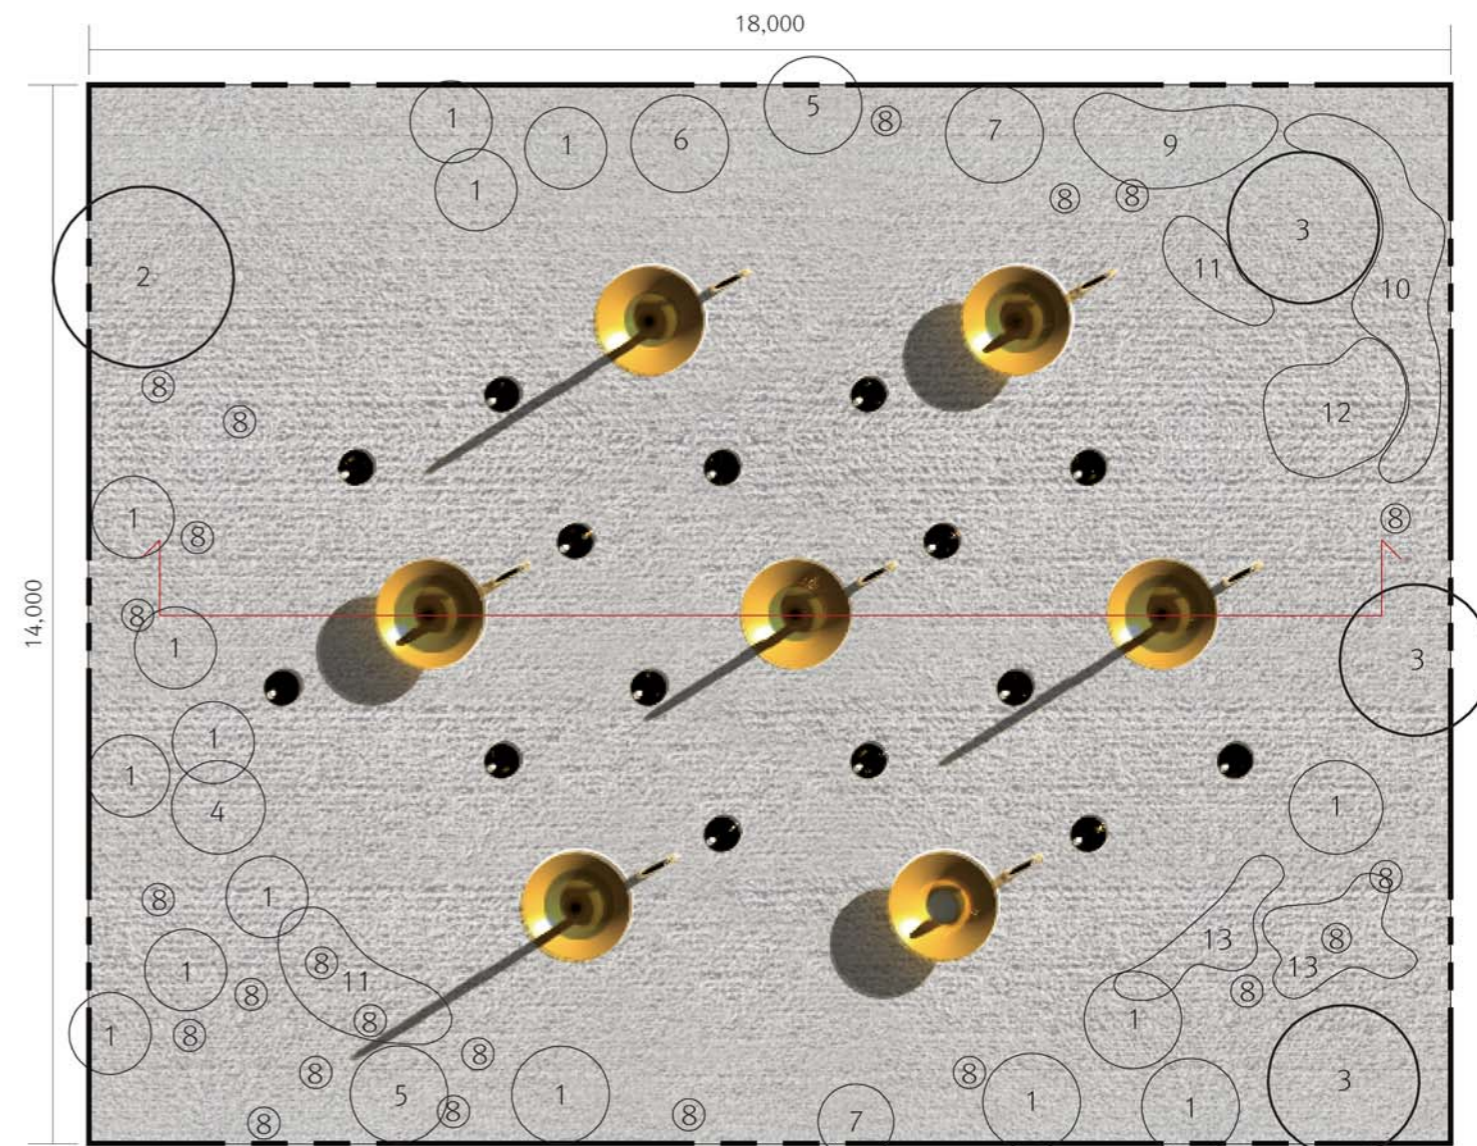

Basically, this garden is inspired from two different ideas induced by a trombone player in a jazz animation movie, 'Chico & Rita' directed by Javier Mariscal.

First inspiration is a player's pull and push movement, a title of this proposal in French, which creates a change of its slide's position so that high and low tone could be played dynamically. It inspires us as an active communication between the player and his device. So It is interpreted as a main motif of design proposal to interconnect between this garden and visitors.

Second inspiration is an imagination that coming out from the hone is water not sound when played. It is considered that different elements coming out could be a different way of enjoyable play unexpectedly. This imagination is combined with previous movement principle for final output.

Consequently, this garden will provide an interactive play for visitors by their hands.
